Spectrotel shall answer the following data request on or before March 19, 2004:

According to Spectrotel, Inc.'s website, the residential plan called "Resipak" provides a bundled package of local, intra-state and intra-LATA long distance. The customer receives an allotment of local calls and local calls in excess of the allotment are 2 cents per minute. Will Indiana customers or potential Indiana customers be provided with a flat rate option for local calls? Will "Resipak" customers be clearly informed that they have an allotment of local calls?
